LL4L
Leadership Literacy for Life

Leadership Fundamentals:

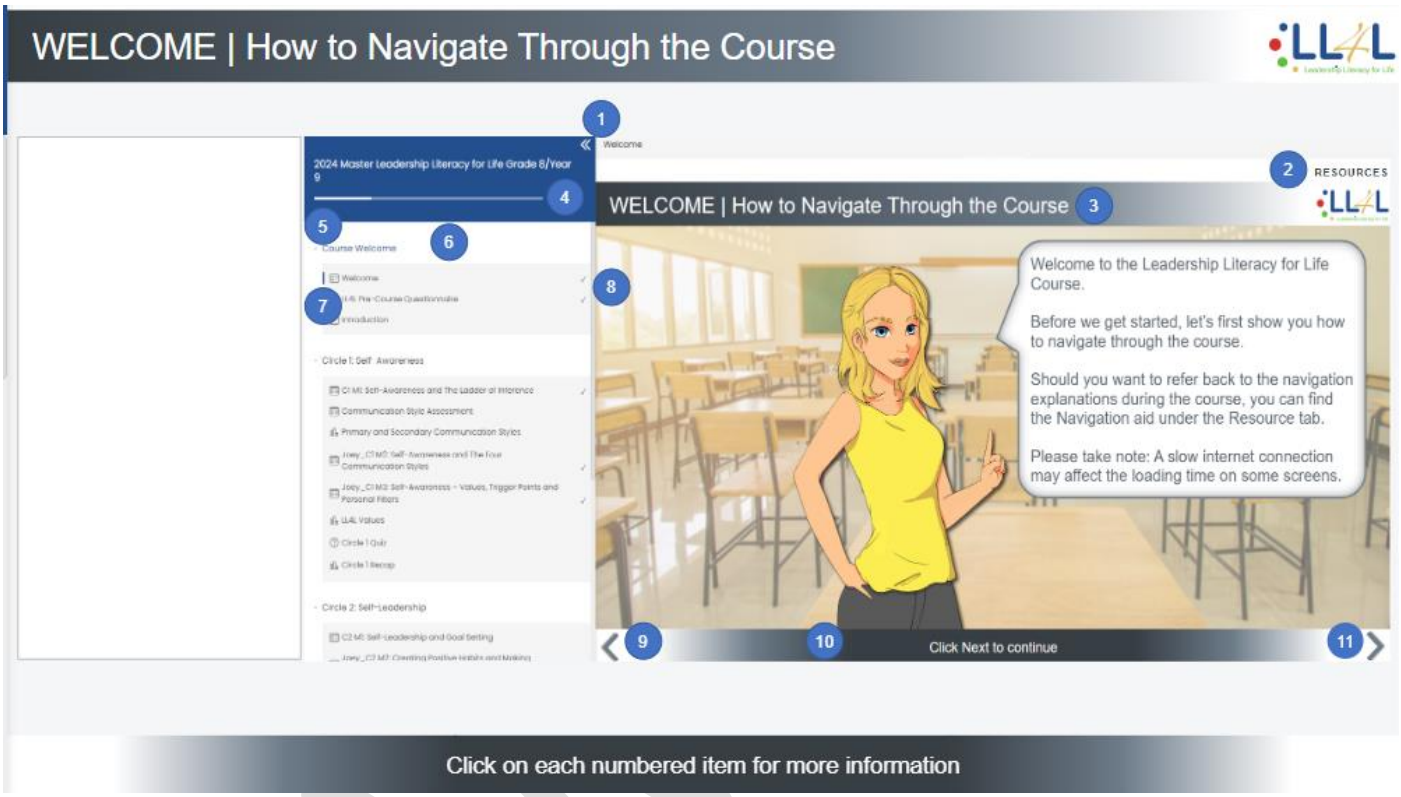
Content Guide

LL4L COURSE CONTENTS

This content guide contains screens that contain content from the course. You can use this guide to reference content.

WELCOME

The first screen shows the learners/students how to navigate through the course.



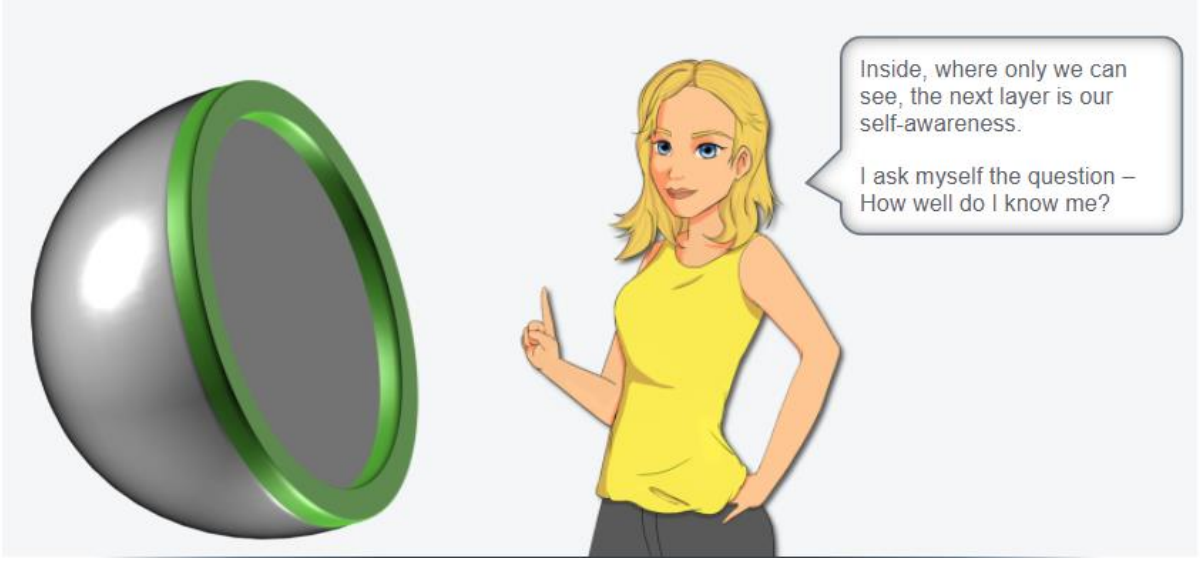
Before the learners/students start the course, we need obtain their permission to protect their privacy and to acknowledge their willingness to participate in the course. Without their permission, they will not be able to continue with the course.

INTRODUCTION

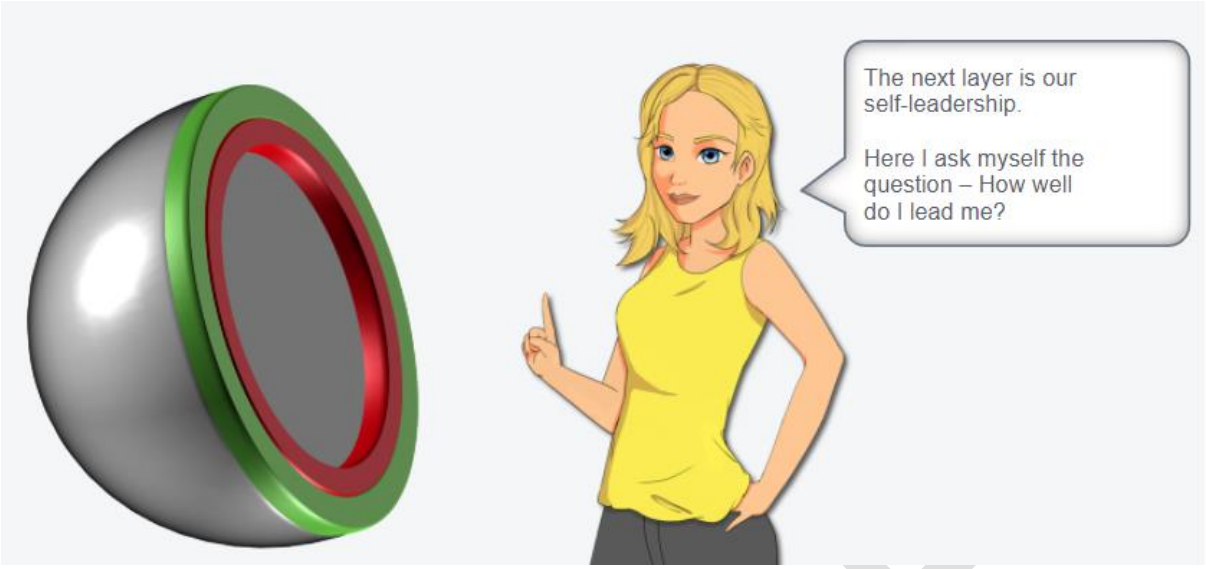
THE THREE CIRCLES OF LITERACY

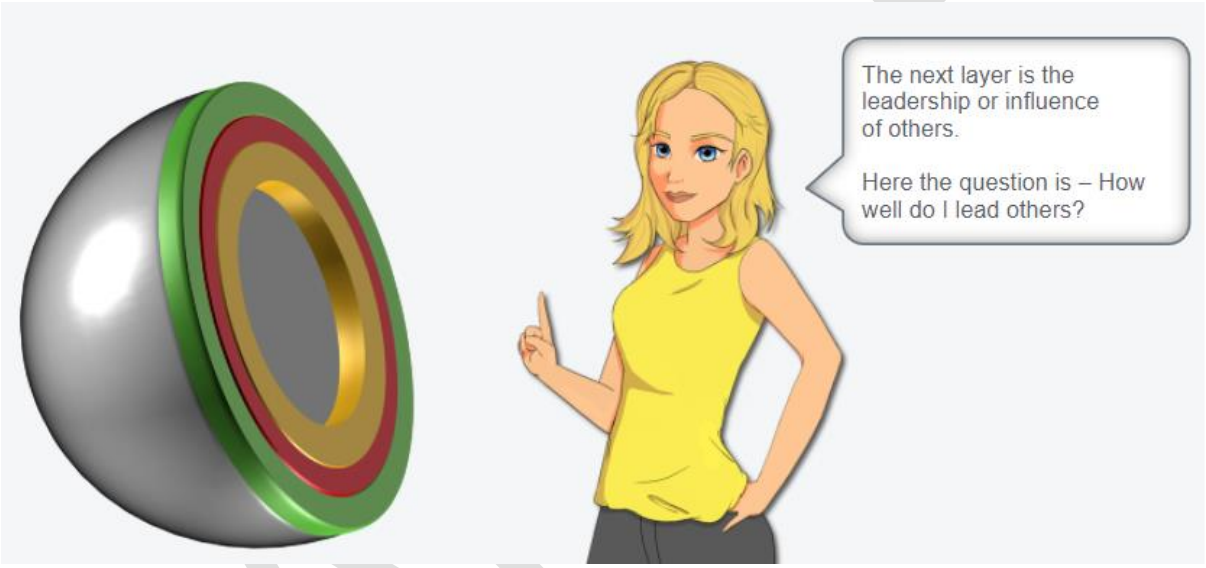
Our leadership literacy is made up of three layers, namely:
1. Self-awareness;
2. Self-leadership; and
3. Leadership of others.
Let's take a deeper look at each of these layers.

The layers are all held within our outer covering layer.
This is what we show the world – this is our "façade" – what others see.



Inside, where only we can see, the next layer is our self-awareness.
I ask myself the question – How well do I know me?





What do you see when you look at this little blue ball–other than a little blue ball? Whatever sprung into your mind just then, will likely be different to what others might see–this is because you see things in your own unique way.

This introduction will outline the leadership literacy learning process consisting of three layers, or circles. The first layer(green) is our self–awareness, the second layer(red) is our self–leadership and third layer(yellow) is our leadership of other skills. These three layers all filter down into this little blue ball–you will see it run across your screen many times during the learning experience and it signifies what leadership will uniquely and personally come to me and to you through the process of this course.

When we get to the end of the course, I will remind you again about the little blue ball and what it might represent about leadership literacy to you then.

SAMPLE